

WHAT IS A STORY?

The poet laureate Randall Jarrell, describes a story as being a chain of events that begins at one place and ends at another “without any essential interruption.”

Mark Twain, a famous author, agreed. His first rule of writing was “that a tale shall accomplish something and arrive somewhere.”

WHAT IS A STORY?

The most important part is that a story intends to arrive at a target destination. It has an intent in mind.